

Pointing your domain at the new site.

About 10 minutes in Wix. You are changing where your web address sends people — nothing gets deleted and you keep the domain.

Wait for Mac before you start.

He has one setting to change on GitHub first. If you do this before he does, the site will not appear. Ask him to confirm he's done it, then go.

What you're actually doing

Right now `musicatedrecords.com` sends people to your old Wix site. You're changing three settings so it sends them to the new one instead. You still own the domain, you still pay Wix for it, and your Wix account carries on exactly as before.

The steps

- 1 Log in to Wix. Go to Domains.
- 2 Next to musicatedrecords.com, click the Domain Actions icon (three dots), then Manage DNS Records.
- 3 Find the section called A (Host). There are three rows there, each pointing at an address starting `185.230.63.` — delete all three.
- 4 Still in A (Host), add four new rows using the table below. Host is `@` every time, TTL is 1 hour every time. Only the address changes.
- 5 Find the section called CNAME (Aliases). Find the row where Host is `www`. Change its value to `brucemacvaughn.github.io`
- 6 Save. Then close it and go and do something else — see below.

The four addresses to add

HOST	POINTS TO	TTL
@	185.199.108.153	1 hour
@	185.199.109.153	1 hour
@	185.199.110.153	1 hour
@	185.199.111.153	1 hour

They are almost identical — only the third number changes: 108, 109, 110, 111. Getting one wrong is the most common mistake, so check them twice.

Only touch those two sections

Change the A (Host) rows and the one www row in CNAME. If you see any other records, leave them exactly as they are. Don't delete anything you weren't told to delete.

Then wait — this bit is normal

The change has to spread across the internet. Usually under an hour, occasionally up to 48 hours. During that time the old site may still appear, and it may appear for you but not for someone else. That is expected and it is not broken.

Checking it worked

Open `musicatedrecords.com` on your phone, on mobile data (not wifi). That's the quickest honest test — your laptop remembers the old address for a while and will lie to you. When you see the new black site with the spinning record, it's done.

Do not cancel or transfer the domain

Keep paying Wix for it as normal. You're only changing where it points, not who it belongs to. Cancelling would take the site down.

If something looks wrong

Message Mac — don't try to undo it yourself. Everything here is reversible in a couple of minutes if he knows what changed. Tell him what you clicked and he'll sort it.

Musicated Records · domain setup · August 2026. Your site currently lives at `brucemacvaughn.github.io/musicated-records` — after this it will answer at `musicatedrecords.com` too.
